Admissions to the program

Applicants must satisfy the University's general and specific requirements for admission to the program:

 Vietnamese students*

For entry assessment, students are selected to the BSc. Environmental Science based on the admission grades. There are 03 methods of admission including (i) direct offer (for students holding excellent grades at the high schools, or students with top prizes in provincial/city academic competitions, prizes in national academic Olympiad contests); (ii) admission based on high school academic records; and (iii) admission based on results of the national high school graduation examination (Note: Enrollment methods are reviewed and may change from year to year)

 International students*

International students submit academic transcripts and a Statement of Purpose (SOP) to the International Cooperation Office for the application process. The International Cooperation Office will then contact with Office of Education Management and relevant faculties for approval.
